

RECORDS OF THAN HARDING'S Militant Ones Say Latter Has Been "Weighed in Balance and Found Wanting"—Claim Leader Has Been Evasive.

BY W. MARVIN POPE,
(Special Correspondent of the News
Scimitar.)

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The record of Senator Harding's record in the Senate has been given a clean bill of health, while Senator Harding himself has been found wanting by the militant suffragists as evasive and evasive in his record of the records of the two parties in the Senate. The militant suffragists, who are not in the least bit public, no doubt is left as to the stand the woman will take should they be permitted to vote in the election through the utilization of the Nineteenth amendment.

Senator Harding's Record.

The records of the two parties leaders are epitomized as follows:

As early as June 21, 1912, denunciations from the woman's party began calling on him to take his stand on the question of political freedom for women. At that time he said: "Believing as I do in political liberty, I had much rather take the party to which I belong, than to assume a leadership of one individual position on the question."

On Jan. 20, 1916, when asked by a militant suffragist, he said he did not see how he "could vote for suffrage and against prohibition." He thought then he would vote against the amendment.

In June, 1916, Senator Harding made the keynote speech at the Republican national convention in Chicago. Before he spoke he was interviewed by members of the woman's party, who mentioned suffrage in his speech, recognizing it as one of the most important issues before the country. He said he had not decided upon everything in his speech, that there would be time to add the suffrage to his speech, and that he would consider it. But the speech was made with no mention of suffrage in it.

On Nov. 11, 1916, when interviewed by a member of the woman's party, he said he was inclined to leave the question of the question to his party. He thought it would be presumptuous for him to dictate to his party.

On April 26, 1917, he declared himself favorable to the amendment but did not appear to him as a war measure. On July 13, 1917, he said he did not approve of calling the suffragists, that the president could put through the measure if he would, and that he might vote for the amendment.

On Feb. 15, 1918, he said he "deplored a too rapid advance of the amendment and consequently would hold back on woman's suffrage."

Finally, on Oct. 1, 1918, Senator Harding had emerged from the midst of noncommittal atmosphere and voted for the amendment.

In February and June, 1919, when it passed Congress.

Since his nomination he has refused to take a decisive stand to enforce final ratification. When interviewed by a delegation from the woman's party, he said that the amendment was also the result of the noncommittal statements given out following a conference with Senator Harding and Gov. Clement, relative to calling a special session in Vermont to ratify the amendment.

Gov. Cox's Record.

Gov. Cox, who has been three times governor of his state, has left Congress when the national woman's party was organized in 1913. Consequently his part in the passage of the amendment could not be so active since he had no vote to cast. But his influence in gaining the senatorial votes of his state and legislative measures was great.

From the first he has shown a favorable attitude and has been willing to meet the suggestions made by the women to whom he has given audience on the subject.

June 15, 1917, he gave an interview to a representative of the woman's party and discussed in detail with her the militant movement for suffrage, showing a marked interest and speaking favorably of the amendment.

At the time of the Democratic convention in June, 1916, at St. Louis, he announced to a delegation from the woman's party that he would vote for it, and that he stood for the measure.

During the period of ratification, denunciations have called on the governor several times and he has been assured of his support of the amendment, when the resolution should come up in the Ohio legislature. When day Burdick of Minnesota wired him saying his position on Ohio ratifying the amendment he replied that he would support it.

On the day following his nomination, Gov. Cox took a step that won the approval of all suffragists. He named the chairman of the Democratic state central committee of Louisiana, whose legislature, then in session, had rejected the amendment, as part of his record.

"It is a duty the legislature of Louisiana owes to the Democratic party to ratify it at once."

COWS BEASTLY DRUNK; BIG STILL IS FOUND

DURHAM, N. C., July 16.—The King, a farmer living near this place, last night found two of his cows lying on the ground in a stupor, apparently suffering from some strange malady. A veterinarian was called and after lengthy examination pronounced both animals as merely "beastly drunk."

A search for the cause led to the discovery of a big "moonshine" still in a secluded corner of the pasture. The cows had eaten the mash and corn used by the stiller when making moonshine.

WOMAN GIVES DYING MAN LIFT; ARRESTED

NEW YORK, July 15.—An unidentified, well-dressed man, who was found with five gunshot wounds in his body here early today, died as he was being rushed to a hospital for treatment.

Miss Loretta LeRoy, who took the man to a hospital in her limousine, told the police she found him in a dying condition and had him placed in her car by her chauffeur, Wilson Jackson, and an Italian, Pasquale Pitaro.

After the slain man was taken into the hospital a revolver was found in Miss LeRoy's automobile and she and her two companions were held by the police.

Belief was expressed by the police, however, that the victim was killed with a shotgun, because of the size of the wounds. Two shotgun were found later by the police in the basement of the house in front of which the man was picked up and one of the weapons gave evidence of having just been discharged and reloaded.

GIOLOTTI UPHELD.
